Chief, NFAC Administrative Staff

FROM:

STATINTL

SUBJECT: Present Briefing on CIA's Role in Support of SALT

1. I have been invited to make a presentation on CIA's role in support of SALT to the Graduate School of International Studies (GSIS) of the University of Denver. The presentation would be given on 17 October to an informal session of GSIS students and faculty.

STATINTL

2. The idea of the presentation was conceived by CIA recruiting officer [REDACTED] and has received strong support from Dean Michael Frye of GSIS. Mr. [REDACTED] recruited me in 1971 when I was a student at GSIS and believes that such a presentation by an alumnus could aid in his recruiting effort. I would be identified as a CIA/NFAC employee and the presentation will be timed to coincide with a recruiting visit by Mr. [REDACTED]. The visit will be beneficial in promoting a positive image for the Agency.

3. No classified information will be involved. The presentation would be similar to the unclassified talk on the same topic that I gave to a group of students and faculty from Monroe Community College when they visited Headquarters earlier this year (see attached). It would include a discussion of the US organization for the formulation and implementation of SALT policy with a stress on the role of CIA, and a discussion of the concept of monitoring. In addition, Mr. [REDACTED] has requested that I also say something about the CT program and my experiences in the Agency.

2. Mr. [REDACTED] has tentatively arranged for me to address two separate groups of graduate students on 16 October. The Director of the Portland State Central European Studies Center, Dr. Poulsen, is very interested since I took several classes from him as an undergraduate at Portland State. The same ground rules would apply as the presentation in Denver, as outlined in the attached reference.

Dear [redacted] STATINTL STATINTL

Being at the CIA was certainly a high point of the SALT II course, Mr. [redacted] briefing was top drawer, he was direct in his answers to questions - even ones he was not able to answer on security grounds. We were highly impressed with him.

We thank you for your presentation on the general functions of the agency and your frankness in dealing with some of the problems and rewards of agency work. You may have won some converts, and perhaps, eventually, some employees.

The session was well-executed and your provision of an interpreter was greatly appreciated. Please thank her for Mary Hicks and us.

Thank you for your assistance in bringing the session together and we hope that we may call upon you for future classes.

Sincerely,
